FOR RELEASE 4:00 P.M. Tuesday, December 7, 1999

Revision of the Corporate Service Price Index (CSPI) to 1995 base

The Corporate Service Price Index (CSPI) focuses on the prices of services traded among corporations, which has been published since January 1991 with a retroactive index from January 1985. The CSPI can be regarded as a counterpart of the Wholesale Price Index (WPI), which focuses on goods traded among corporations.

1. Purpose of the revision

The base year for both index and weight calculation has been updated from 1990 to 1995 to incorporate the changes in Japan's economic structure. Groupings and selection of items have also been revised to enhance the accuracy of the indexes.

---- The revision is conducted once every five years. This is the second revision for the CSPI, following the revision from the 1985 base to the 1990 base, which was done in 1994.

The structure of the CSPI and the base data for its weight calculation, which generally correspond to the values of the intermediate transactions in the Input-Output Tables (I-O Tables) published by the Management and Coordination Agency, are the same as before.

In reviewing the groupings and the selection of items, we have made a special effort to capture the appearance of new services and the diversification of existing services, which are brought about by the recent deregulations and technological innovations. The groupings and items have further expanded. As the variance of price movements within the same or similar services is becoming larger than before, we have also revised the price data to enhance the accuracy of the indexes.

2. Major points of the revision

(1) Increase in the number of items

- (a) In the telecommunications field, where deregulations and technological innovations have brought about new services and diversified existing services rapidly, "ISDN (Integrated Services Digital Network)," "PHS (Personal Handyphone System) services" and "access charges" are newly selected. "International telex" is abolished because of the decrease in transaction value.
- (b) In the miscellaneous services field, nine items as professional services, five of which are the result of the division of two existing items, are newly selected. These include "certified administrative procedures specialist services," "certified social insurance and labor specialist services" and "attorney services," etc. As other services, "linen supply" is also selected.
- (c) In the financial services field, "underwriting services" and "trust business services" are newly selected by using the Consumer Price Index (CPI) published by the Management and Coordination Agency as an inflator. "Securities issuance and related services" is also selected.
 - (Note) In some items such as "underwriting services," service prices are determined based on "commission rates." As commission rates themselves are the concept of percentage and cannot be regarded as "prices" to be compiled in price indexes, they are converted into a "price" basis through multiplying the rates by the appropriate price index. This price is adopted as price data for the CSPI and the corresponding price index is called an "inflator."

(2) Refinement of price data

- (a) To cope with the proliferation of discount pricing systems in telecommunications services, various type of discount prices are adopted for items such as "domestic fixed telephone services" and "cellular phone services."
- (b) Adoption of average prices is expanded to cope with cases when it is difficult to select a representative service for the price data.
 - ---- Average prices are newly adopted for items such as "securities issuance and related services," "television commercials" and "temporary employment services."
- (c) In the items of "fire insurance" and "architectural design and contract administration services," the inflator is changed from the Construction Cost Deflators published by the Ministry of Construction to the Building Construction Cost Index published by the Construction Research Institute, because the latter is more suitable for both services.

(3) Other changes

- (a) The treatment of the movement of foreign exchange rates in converting foreign currency based price indexes to yen based price indexes for items such as "ocean trampers" and "ocean tankers" is changed.
 - ----- Previsouly, if there were no transactions for a certain price data contracted in foreign currency in a certain survey period, then not only the "contract currency basis" indexes but also the foreign exchange rates (therefore the "yen basis" indexes) were treated as unchanged. The new treatment is that the movement of foreign exchange rates is always reflected in the conversion regardless of the existence of transactions during each survey period. As a result, even if the index for "contract currency basis" does not change, the index for "yen basis" changes because of the movement of foreign exchange rates during the survey period.
 - ---- In the Wholesale Price Index (WPI) and the Input-Output Price Indexes of Manufacturing Industry by Sector (IOPI), the same method will be adopted from the data for January 2000 which will be published February 2000. (Note)
 - (Note) In the "ten-day price index" of the WPI, this treatment will start from the first ten-day index in February.
- (b) Previously, the weights of services which were not selected as items in the CSPI within "other business services" and "other personal services" were imputed to "miscellaneous services" (named "other services" in the 1990 base index) and "leasing and rental." (Note) In the revised index, they are imputed only to "miscellaneous services."
 - (Note) The term "impute" means that the prices of unselected services are incorporated into the CSPI by substituting the prices of selected services. Practically, the weights of unselected services whose prices are difficult to survey are added to those of other services selected as items in the CSPI, whose price movements and characteristics seem to be similar.
- (c) In order to further improve the accuracy of the indexes, retroactive revision of the indexes is planned. The details, including the timing and frequency, will be announced as soon as they are decided.
 - ---- This revision will also be adopted in the WPI and the IOPI.

3. Detailed contents of the revision

Note: For details of the 1995 base index groupings, items and weights, see Appendix 1.

3.1 Changes in groupings and items

< Changes in the number of grouping and items >

	Major groups	Groups	Sub-groups	Items	(Reference) Price data
1990 base	8	17	32	89	approximately 2,800
1995 base	8	17	39	102	approximately 3,000

- (1) Modification in groupings of the "basic grouping"
 - (a) In major groups, "communications" has been changed to "communications and broadcasting."
 - (b) In groups, "building maintenance and construction planning," "legal and accounting services" and "temporary employment services" have been rearranged to "professional services" and "other services." "Broadcasting" has been newly established.
 - (c) In sub-groups, "domestic telecommunications" and "international telecommunications" have been rearranged to "domestic and international telecommunications services" and "mobile telecommunications services." "Information services" has been divided to "software development" and "other information services." "Securities services," "access charges," "cable broadcasting," "other professional services," "security services" and "laundry services" have been newly established.
- (2) Changes in selected items of the "basic grouping"
 - (a) Twelve items are newly selected. ("ISDN<Integrated Services Digital Network>," "PHS<Personal Handyphone System> services," "access charges," "underwriting services," "securities issuance and related services," "certified administrative procedures specialist services," "certified social insurance and labor specialist services" and "linen supply," etc.)
 - (b) One item is abolished ("international telex").
 - (c) One item is combined with another item ("stevedoring services").

(d) Two items are divided into five items. ("attorney services," "certified public accountant services" and "licensed tax accountant services," etc.)

(3) Modification of the "reference index"

(a) Items included in indexes for basic grouping (Note)

"Packing for freight (by destination)" is abolished because of the decrease in transaction value for domestic freight. "Legal and accounting services (by profession)" is abolished because the same items are newly selected in the "basic grouping."

"Trust business services (commission rates)," "underwriting services (commission rates)" and "property and casualty insurance services (commission rates)" are moved from "items not included in indexes for basic grouping" to "items included in indexes for basic grouping." It is because these services are newly adopted into the "basic grouping."

(Note) These are two types of indexes calculated for analytical uses. The first type is the indexes which are compiled by subdividing the item in the "basic grouping." The second type is indexes calculated by using commission rates, which are included in the "basic grouping" through multiplying the rates by the inflator.

(b) Items not included in indexes for basic grouping (Note)

"Bond issue transfer agency charges," "brokerage commissions (commission rates)," "newly contracted rents (central Tokyo)," "broadcasting revenue from advertising (monthly amount)" and "lodging service charges" are abolished.

(Note) These indexes, which are not included in the "basic grouping," are calculated for analytical references.

3.2 Changes in weights

The weights of "finance and insurance," "communications and broadcasting" and "miscellaneous services" increase because of the adoption of newly selected items and the increase of their transaction values. On the other hand, the weights of "leasing and rental" and "real estate services" decrease because of the reduction of their transaction values. The weight changes; increase in "miscellaneous services" and decrease in "leasing and rental," are also affected by the change of imputation procedure (For details, see 2 (3) (b)).

The figures in parentheses are the point changes in weight over the 1990 base index.

4. Developments in the new and old indexes

Note: For details about retroactive indexes, see Appendix 3. For details about indexes for January 1985 - December 1994 (linked indexes, which are available for all items and major groups), see Appendix 4.

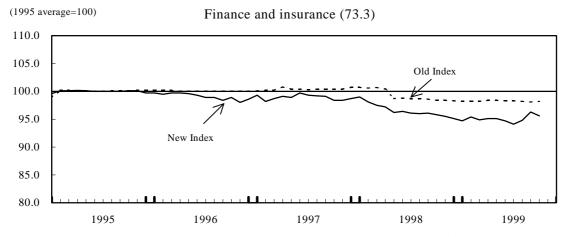

4.1 All items and major groups

Note: 1. The old index shows the 1990 base index with the 1995 calendar year average converted to 100.

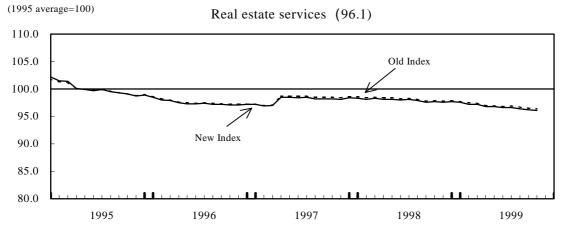

- 2. All indexes are indicated till October 1999.
- 3. The figures in parentheses are the weights.

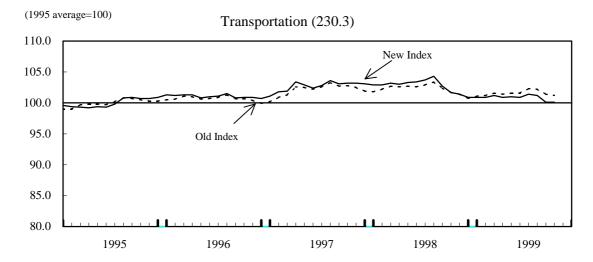

The new index is below the old index because of downward shifts in the prices of "communications and broadcasting," "leasing and rental" and "finance and insurance."

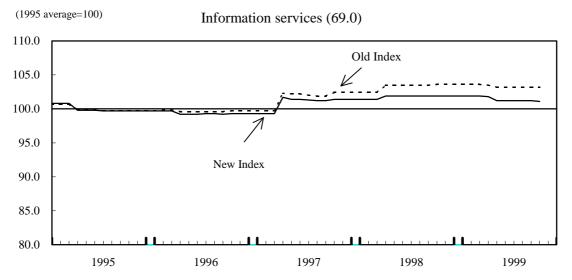

The new index is below the old index because of (a) declines in the prices of "underwriting services" and "securities issuance and related services," both of which are newly selected, and (b) a downward shift in the price of "fire insurance."

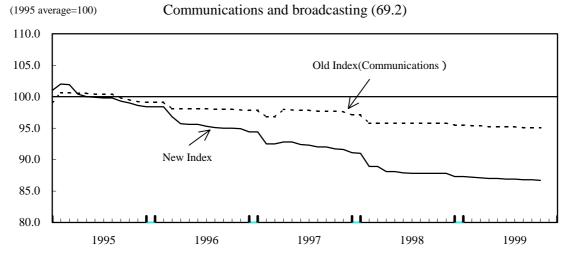

The new index is below the old index because of a downward shift in the price of "office space rental."

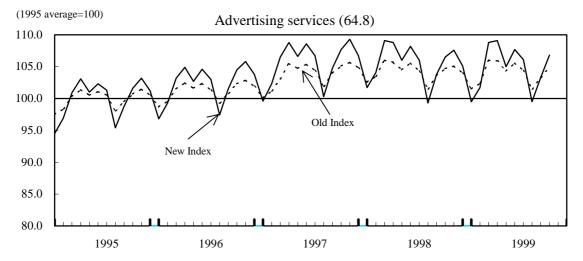

The fluctuation of the new index is larger than that of the old index due to fluctuations in the prices of "ocean trampers" and "ocean tankers."

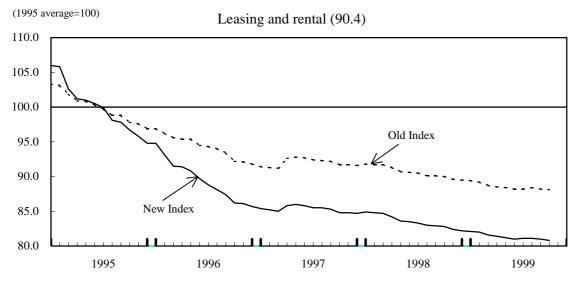

The new index is below the old index because of (a) a decrease in the weight of "software development," whose price is rising, and (b) a downward shift in the price and an increase in the weight of "data processing."

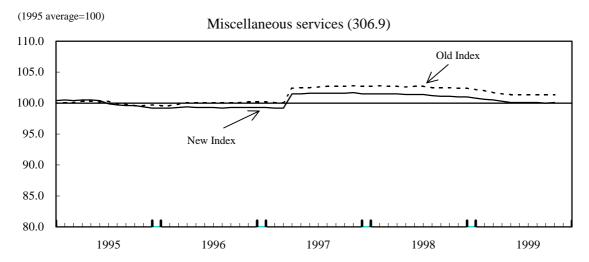

The new index is below the old index because of (a) a downward shift in the price of "domestic fixed telephone services," (b) an increase in the weight of "cellular phone services," whose price is declining rapidly, and (c) a decrease in the price of "access charges."

The fluctuation of the new index is larger than that of the old index due to fluctuation in the price of "television commercials."

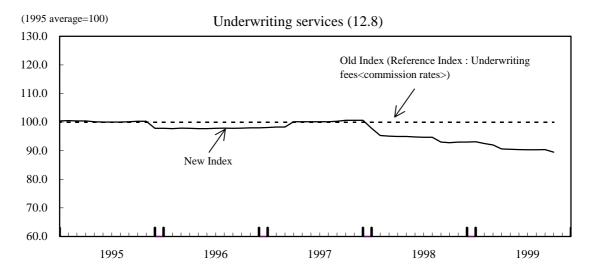

The new index is below the old index because of downward shifts in the prices of "leasing of computers and related equipment" and "computer rental."

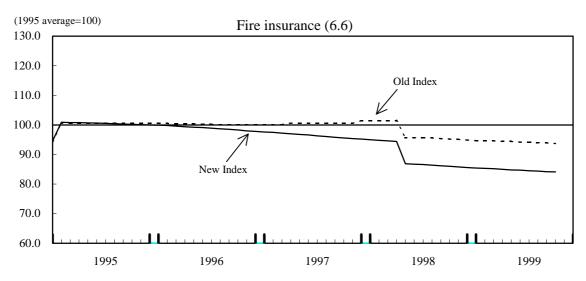

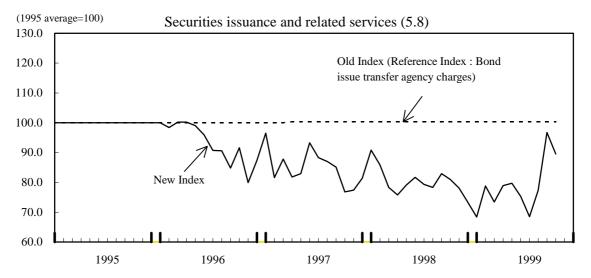

The new index is below the old index because of (a)a downward shift in the price and an increase in the weight of "motor vehicle maintenance" and (b) a decrease in the price of "linen supply" which is newly selected.
